

Case Study

Using Telepresence at Xerox Audio Visual Solutions

Don't drive to your next meeting in town. Telepresence solutions get you there safely, cost effectively and on time.

How telepresence can reduce Atlanta drive time frustrations.

I've sent you a few messages about how telepresence can help you save time and expenses and become more productive if you have multiple offices to manage. Most of the time we think that these "remote" offices need to be in other cities or states to get all the benefits afforded by telepresence. Well let's not forget that in a city with as much traffic problems as Atlanta, these benefits can accrue just as easily (and in fact probably more frequently) if you have two or more offices in Atlanta.

Sometimes it can take more than an hour (and a lot of frustration) to get from one part of Atlanta to another. That's two hours of travel plus the meeting time plus the frustrations of travel. Think of how many of those meetings could be accomplished by telepresence. And how more productive those meetings would be if the attendees aren't 1) frustrated by the traffic congestion they must drive thru or 2) watching the clock trying to end the meeting before Atlanta's rush hour begins.

If this seems like an application that would benefit your organization, we will be glad to set up a personal demonstration for you about how telepresence can make your business more efficient and effective.

Daniel G. Boylan
President
Xerox Audio Visual Solutions